POLITICAL PROPHETS AT SEA

Declare That If Roosevelt Duplicates
Illinois Stunt He Will Have Thrown Serious Crimp Into President Taft's
Political Aspirations—May Result
In Bringing Forth New Candidate
In Person of Justice Hughes of Supreme Court.

Washington, April 13.—Followers of the political game here are almost unanimous in their opinion that today's primaries in the state of Pennsylvania will be the crisis in the Taft-Roosevelt campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. The managers of both wings of the party are keenly alive to the great stakes at issue in the contest and both sides are showing more perverseness than they have at any other time in the fight.

Republicans generally acknowledge that if Roosevelt sweeps Pennsylvania
the way he did Illinois, it will be a blow from which the Taft boom will have great difficulty in overcoming. President Taft's own political managers realize that the eyes of the Republicans in the south are centered on this Pennsylvania contest.
Southern delegates to the Republican conventions in years past have been notorious for jumping to the winning handwagon, and if Roosevelt should add Pennsylvania to the prestige that he gained through the Illinois victory, many Republicans fear that the president would find some of his southern strength slipping away.

Defeat for the president in Pennsylvania, too, would give impetus to the talk now heard in many quarters of the possibility of bringing forward a compromise candidate. In the opinion of many political observers the turning of Pennsylvania against Taft would make the selection of the third candidate a man like Justice Hughes absolutely necessary, inasmuch as it would demonstrate that President Taft could not hold the Republican strongholds of the country.

Officeholder Tells of Being Told to Root For Teddy.

Reading, Pa., April 13.—Postmaster
A. M. High, Republican leader of the Berkes-Lehigh district, who was criticized by Colonel Roosevelt for sending out a circular letter asking his friends to support the organization candidates for national delegates and who Roosevelt called a bread-and-butter politician, shot back at Roosevelt. Postmaster High, who was twice appointed by Mr. Roosevelt, said Roosevelt's campaign managers asked him when Roosevelt was a candidate to be a national delegate in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf.

"I was," he added, "elected, and made a declaration that I would support Roosevelt. I was then postmaster, but I was not criticised or censured."

In 1907, he says, he was again appointed to support Roosevelt's choice for president and complied. "That," he continues, "was proper to his view then, and now he finds fault with my sending out a letter to my friends."

Board Continues Policy.
Columbus, O., April 13.—Carrying out its policy of refusing clemency to men convicted of betraying a public trust, the state board of administration refused a parole to James A.
La Pollette, received at the pen Nov.
12, 1910, to serve five years for embezzling funds while he was treasurer of Guernsey county.

LEVEE BREAKS IN NEW PLACE

Thousands of Square Miles of

HUGE CREVASSE IS FORMED

Several Parishes in Northern Louisiana at Mercy of Mississippi Flood.
Break Is Accompanied by Great Crash as Waters Pour Through Hundred-Foot Hole in Embankment—Loss of Live Stock Expected to be Greatest in State's History.

New Orleans, April 13.—Thousands of square miles of territory in northern Louisiana will be inundated by a crevasse which has formed in East Carroll parish, on the west bank of the Mississippi river. The entire Jensas river basin, including several parishes, is embraced in the flooded territory. With a roar and a crash that could be heard for a great distance, the levee at Alsatia broke and opened a way for a stream of water that swept everything before it. The levee at the point where the crevasse opened is about 23 feet in height. About 100 feet of the levee went out and at last accounts was rapidly widening.

The break will put the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific and the Memphis, Helena & Louisiana railroads out of business, flood the towns of Tallulah and Roosevelt and submerge some of the largest and most fertile plantations in the state.

The loss to live stock is expected to be the greatest in the history of Louisiana. Grave fears of life loss are entertained.

If any glamour of romance attached at the beginning to the Allen clan, whose members murdered Judge Massie and four others at the Hillsville courthouse, it has been dispelled by the march of events. Most of the outlaws seem even to have been lacking in the "never surrender" spirit that was supposed to animate them and have been taken by the authorities without any more bloodshed. The Allens appear not to have had the excuse which is urged in behalf of many of the lawless southern mountaineers, poverty and ignorance. They were well to do, and some of them at least appear to have had reasonable educational advantages. While those who have given themselves up have not lived up to dime novel expectations, one may accord to them the merit of having recognized their desperate situation if they continued to defy the authorities and of having saved the state whose laws they have outraged the further expenditure of blood and money to bring them to justice. The upper of the two illustrations shows Fred Allen, one of the younger outlaws, brought into town by his captor (the man with the rifle, the other the Allens' attorneys, H. W. Hairston left and R. H. Willis right).

CONFERENCE QUITE COSTLY ON EVERY DAY

Philadelphia, April 13.—A million dollars a day is the loss sustained by operators, miners and railroads while the conferences continue between the miners and the representatives of the operators in this city.

The dove of peace, however, is hovering over the men as they debate upon the nine demands made by the United Mine Workers. For six hours the committee of eight representatives of both factions, discussed the general situation in the coal fields and finally got down to the demands themselves, with an effort to arrive at an amicable agreement without bringing their differences before the anthracite strike commission.

President White refused to make a statement other than that the committee could report progress. No statement was given out by the committee.

The next meeting will be held on Monday and, according to John T.
Kennedy, president of district No. 1,
the meetings will continue during the greater part of next week. It is hoped that the large committee will reconvene late in the week in order that an agreement may be definitely reached.

The question of the eight-hour demand was threshed out for several hours. It is understood that the operators are not willing that the eight-hour shift be established. This point is one upon which a compromise is likely to be effected when the operators' plan of offering a 5 or 10 per cent increase is made.

Clara Burton Joins Corps Of Immortal Nurses

Was Founder of Red Cross Society in America.

Washington, April 13.—Miss Clara
Barton, founder of the American Red Cross society, died at her home in Glen Echo, Md. The cause of her death was chronic pneumonia, with which she was stricken about a year ago. Miss Barton was born at Oxford, Mass., in 1821.

She celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary Dec. 25, when she received many messages of congratula-tion from all parts of the world.

Clara Barton might properly be called the Florence Nightingale of America. Like her British prototype her works of mercy were not confined to her native land, but were carried even into the eastern hemisphere.

She will be written down in history
as the founder of the Red Cross in America, but her powerful personality also made an indelible impression upon the international organization itself through her active participation in the periodical conferences at Geneva, Karlsruhe, Rome, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

The Murder Of Rich Man Is a Mystery Police Puzzled

Lynn, Mass., April 13.—What appears at the present time to be another of the baffling murder mysteries of which Massachusetts has had many in recent years, came to light through the discovery of the body of George E. Marsh, a wealthy soap manufacturer of this city, lying on the jagged rocks which form the embankment of the state boulevard between this city and Revere. Mr.
Marsh, who was 75, had been shot several times. There were indications of a struggle, and robbery could not have been the motive, as neither the dead man's watch or money had been taken.

Thomas M. Burekas, chief of police here, says that he is completely baffled and that at the present time no one is under suspicion.

A story cropped out connecting a woman with the case and caused the detectives to make an investigation along that line. It was intimated that Mr. Marsh might have met this woman, who is beyond middle age, as she was in a carriage, and that he took a drive with her, and that if she did not do the shooting, that some other person was met who killed Marsh for reasons which cannot be determined at the present time. Mr. Marsh was considered to be worth more than $500,000.

County Official Indicted.

Marysville, O., April 13.—Robert G.
Guy, former Republican treasurer of Union county, was indicted by the grand jury for alleged violation of the public depository law.

MILITARY HONORS AT FUNERAL OF GENERAL GRANT

General Grant Will Be Laid to Rest
at West Point.

New York, April 13.—General Frederick Dent Grant will be given a full military funeral in this city and will be buried at West Point, where military services also will be held. This was announced after Brigadier Tas-ker H. Bliss, now in command of the department of the east, and Lieutenant Marion Howze, the dead general's military aid, had held a consultation at the Hotel Buckingham with Mrs. Grant and Captain Ulisses S.
Grant, third. The funeral will be delayed, however, for 10 or 12 days, it was stated, until the arrival here of General Grant's daughter, Princess Michael Cantacuzene-Speransky, who is now in Russia. The princess cabled that she would start for this country at once.

Today the body will be removed to Governor's Island, headquarters of the department of the east, and will be placed in the chapel of Cornelius the Centurion, where it will lie in state under a military guard until the day of the funeral.

Springfield, Mass., April 13.—With 300 diners Colonel Roosevelt sat down to a banquet at the Kimball house
the guest of the Commercial Travelers' club of Springfield. Hardly had the colonel, brimful of fighting spirit and in no mood for after-dinner oratory, having come expecting a big popular audience to speak to, seated himself with his exclusive board than there arose W. G. McKechnie, one of the travelers, Democrat, prospective candidate for congress, who in a short speech explained that the club was in no sense political.

Mr. McKechnie, continuing, said:
"Though we are not in politics here,
I may say that we Democrats are looking with considerable complacency this year on the difficulties in the Republican party and the progress of the principles being advocated by our distinguished guest."

Duly Impressed With Remarks.
Colonel Roosevelt said in part: "I was duly impressed with Mr. Mc-Kechnie's explanation that there are no politics here and that therefore he ought to warn me that both he and the toastmaster utterly disagree with my policies, and then stating that he looked with equanimity upon the differences now disturbing the Republican party."

Acknowledges Warning.
"Mr. McKechnie is apparently under the mistaken impression that his own side is boiling over with harmony. If Mr. McKechnie is really fervently impressed that it is so, I would suggest to him that he arrange a joint debate between Messrs.
Bryan and Underwood and Harmon and Wilson."

The crowd burst into laughs once more, while Mr. McKechnie blazed up into his reddest. The colonel continued: "I couldn't refrain from speaking politics to you, for my politics represent my deepest and most earnest convictions as to the vital needs of our people. Of course I should speak of them to you."

The colonel then plunged into his speech, in which he spoke mainly of business conditions and policies and of his belief in the necessity of the time for remedying the conditions of unequal service and reward among the working people.

Cincinnati, O., April 13.—Mrs. Mathilda Radeloff, whose husband died after accusing her of luring him to a lonely place and there shooting him, has made a complete confession, according to the police. Mrs.
Radeloff, who is only 21 years old,
returned to Cincinnati from Gary,
Ind., two weeks ago, runs the confession, at her husband's solicitation, to end her domestic difficulties one way or the other. At their old trust-fired five shots at him, meantime raising her own voice so that his cries for help might not be heard.

FIRE DEMON GNAWS AT MILLEDGEVILLE'S HEART

HEROIC WORK SAVES VILLAGE

Blaze Wipes Out Odd Fellows' Temple Containing Milledgeville Bank, Pearson's Store and Undertaking Parlors.

FIRE STARTED IN COAL SHED

Quickly Spreads to Large Home of Odd Fellows, Entailing Total Loss of $8,000 to $10,000, Most of Which is Covered by Insurance.

Second Time Odd Fellows Are Rendered Homeless, But Will Rebuild With Brick Structure.

The worst fire in the history of the town swept Milledgeville early this morning, and as a result the large two-story frame Odd Fellows' Temple, containing Pearson's general store, the Milledgeville bank and postoffice on the first floor and the Odd Fellows' and Rebekahs' home, on the second floor, and a smaller frame building adjoining the temple, are a pile of smoking embers, while the property loss is variously estimated at $8,000 to $10,000, most of which was covered by insurance.

The fire started at 4:30 o'clock, and some of the citizens were attracted by the crackling of the flames which at that time were confined to two coal houses in the rear of the main building. No one knows how the fire originated.

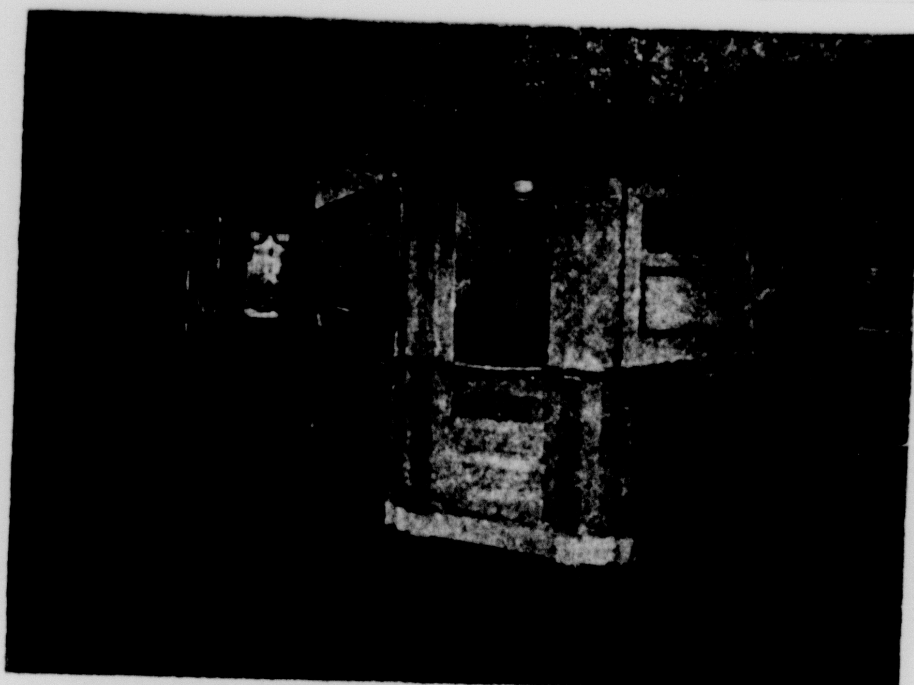

The church bell and the curfew bell, with the assistance of the telephone operator, spread the alarm and the half-dressed citizens rushed forth and worked with might and main to confine the fire demon to as small a district as possible.

In ashes, as the Odd Fellows' Temple was in the center of the village, located on the west side of Main street, 200 feet from the elevator. Other frame buildings were within a few rods of the temple, and although some of them were scorched, they were not damaged to any extent.

The estimated loss to Milledgeville Lodge No. 713, I. O. O. F. is between $3,000 and $4,000. The building was insured for $2,500 and the fixtures and lodge property at $100. The Rebekah lodge lost all paraphernalia and records.

The Henry Pearson general store, occupying one of the large first floor rooms and containing the postoffice, suffered a loss of at least $2,500, and Mr. Pearson carried $1,000. His loss above insurance is at least $1500.

While some of the mail in the postoffice was saved, a large portion of it was consumed. The postoffice was opened temporarily in a small building across the street.

INTERIOR OF THE MILLEDGEVILLE BANK.

ing across the street. Among the goods lost by Mr. Pearson, who recently purchased the Henry Jones store, was $100 worth of potatoes in the cellar.

The Milledgeville bank is one of the heaviest losers in the fire, but the loss is almost fully covered by insurance. The large steel safe was practically ruined, but the big cement vault saved all that it contained and stands blackened and cracked among the ruins. The loss to the bank will probably reach anywhere from $1000 to $3000.

Mr. John Armatrou, the funeral director, had no insurance. It is claimed, and his loss will be several hundred dollars. He occupied an addition to the main building. One room of the addition was occupied by a man who lived in it. He lost practically everything.

The Odd Fellows' building was some 40 by 60 feet, and while it was erected nearly 15 years ago, it was in first class condition and cannot be replaced short of $4000.

Seventeen years ago the Odd Fellows lost their home by fire which started from burning soot. The lodge, contains 130 members and is in good condition financially.

A number of Odd Fellows, prominent in the order, in speaking of rebuilding stated that there was little doubt but what a brick structure would take the place of the building consumed. This, if constructed, and there is every reason to believe it will, will greatly add to the business part of the town.

There is no indication that the building was set on fire, but some hold to the idea that smoldering embers in the ash heap set fire to the coal houses which in turn set fire to the Odd Fellows' building.

The citizens who fought the fire deserve great credit for the manner in which they handled it.

Many from this city went up to view the ruins, returning on the next train. Two or three auto loads also went, reaching the scene about eight o'clock, or before.

HOMES IN AFRICA

High Standard of Refinement Exists Among the Dutch.

Boers Are the Backbone of Country— "Colored Help" Proves to Be Household Problem— Abundance of Work for Men.

Cape Town, Africa—In South Africa there are many and varied influences at work shaping the character of the country—in its home life no less than in a political sense. When we read and speak of the lack of refinement exhibited in the homes of the Boers we must not forget that there is another section of the Dutch population of British South Africa. There is a very high and very exact standard of refinement in hundreds of old Dutch families in the Cape peninsula, families in which the traditions of ages back are carried out to the letter, whether they stand for niceties of domestic life or its warm-hearted hospitality.

There are four colonies in the union of South Africa, and each has its own characteristics, every nation under the sun has given its quota to the people of those four distinctive countries; the two dominating races are just in the midst of a process of settlement of the many questions that have vexed them for the last ten years; and behind all this there is the great fact of the problem of white and black. These are the elements of which the colonist must form some sort of sympathetic estimate.

A common objective for all blame is the colored servant question. But many a tired and seasoned South American housekeeper would not give up her "colored labor" for any other that could be supplied in its place. The disasters of the system come from the abuse of it. A great many of the women who employ black servants in South Africa have the most imperfect way to treat or manage a servant of any sort.

As to the routine of every day life in South Africa, there is not very much to mark that as being distinct from the routine anywhere else. Men work hard; the demands of commercial life are heavy, and the "slacker" is useless. In short, there are many when they reach Africa now much more they are able to do. The work is energizing, however, and work does not kill.

Not always with perfect justification, perhaps, the South African comes to look on life with a certain detachment; he does all that he ought to do, but does it carelessly, as if it were less than noteworthy. He does not become flustered; he dines at night—and takes plenty of time over it—and he appears to be careless of money even when he is not really so. Such an attitude as this brings much satisfaction, and the man who has that attitude cannot very well be charged with vulgarity or with the error of missing the whole meaning of life.

TREES CLAIMED BY OCEAN

Fishes Swim Where Once Were Held the Drills of Soldiers on the Island of Panay.

Panay, P. I.—From Fort San Pedro to the outskirts of Oton, including all of the beach side of Iloilo city, the sea currents are rapidly washing away the sand and gravel and allowing the sea to encroach on the mainland at a dangerous rate. Old residents tell us that where the water now reaches was formerly solid ground; that soldiers were once drilled where now the fishes swim.

During the high tides of a few months since probably a hundred large coconut trees were literally washed up by the roots on account of the beach having been gradually swept away to such an extent that the waves could beat against them. These trees had been growing along the water front for many years and only fell after they had been undermined by the constantly encroaching water.

The property along this beach is valuable and should be protected. Not only is it valuable, but some of it constitutes the most beautiful part of this city, and for this reason also should be protected.

We suggest that steps be taken to have government engineers look into this matter with a view of making recommendations for some kind of protection against the constant wearing away of this valuable and beautiful part of our city.

FIRE DEMON GNAWS AT MILLEDGEVILLE'S HEART

HEROIC WORK SAVES VILLAGE

Blaze Wipes Out Odd Fellows' Temple Containing Milledgeville Bank, Pearson's Store and Undertaking Parlors.

FIRE STARTED IN COAL SHED

Quickly Spreads to Large Home of Odd Fellows, Entailing Total Loss of $8,000 to $10,000, Most of Which is Covered by Insurance.

Second Time Odd Fellows Are Rendered Homeless, But Will Rebuild With Brick Structure.

The worst fire in the history of the town swept Milledgeville early this morning, and as a result the large two story frame Odd Fellow's Temple, containing Pearson's general store, the Milledgeville bank and postoffice on the first floor and the Odd Fellows' and Rebekahs' home, on the second floor, and a smaller frame building adjoining the temple, are a pile of smoking embers, while the property loss is variously estimated at $8,000 to $10,000, most of which was covered by insurance.

The fire started at 4:30 o'clock and some of the citizens were attracted by the crackling of the flames which at that time were confined to two coal houses in the rear of the main building. No one knows how the fire originated.

The church bell and the curfew bell, with the assistance of the telephone operator, spread the alarm and the half dressed citizens rushed forth and worked with might and main to confine the fire demon to as small a district as possible.

The flames quickly spread and soon the Odd Fellows building was a roaring, seething mass of flames which soon licked up every particle of the Odd Fellows' building that was perishable, but so heroically did the fire fighters work that all the surrounding buildings were saved except a two room structure built against the main building and tenanted by John Armatrou. Even the north wall of this was saved, showing the efficiency of the fire-fighters.

J. L. Kelley, who lives just across the street, was one among the first on the scene and after ascertaining that the building was doomed, he hurried into the smoke filled lodge room and saved the charter. The lodge records were kept in the small safe which went through the fire.

Estel Smith, cashier of the Milledgeville bank was also one among the first present, and rushing into the bank he secured the books and money and transferred it to a place of safety, opening up for business in an adjoining room within three hours after the fire.

Many women assisted in the bucket brigades, and the great work of the fire fighters is everywhere apparent. Like Bloomingburg, the village is entirely without fire equipment, and the work of confining the blaze to the Odd Fellows' building was done entirely by bucket brigades. Buildings just across an alley were saved. A number of residences immediately west of the building were on fire at various times, but a careful watch was maintained and as quickly as a fire-brand struck a residence and a blaze started, it was extinguished.

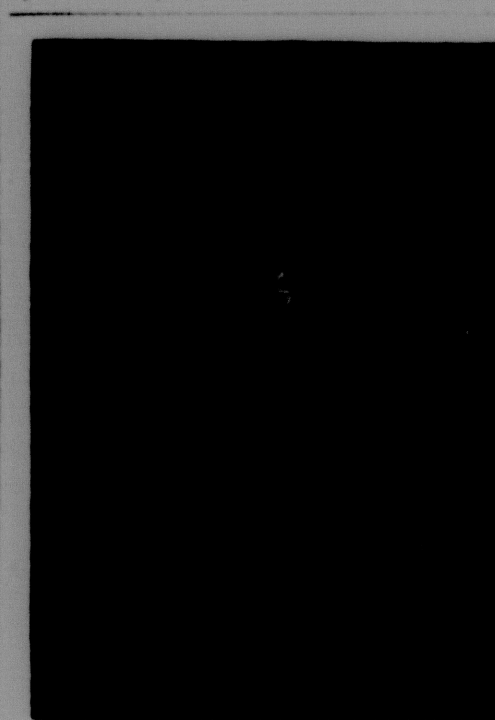

Like this city, Milledgeville probably owes its salvation to the fact that it was raining and all of the buildings were water soaked. If the fire had come in a dry time a large part of the village would have been in ashes, as the Odd Fellows' Temple was in the center of the village, located on the west side of Main street, 200 feet from the elevator. Other frame buildings were within a few rods of the temple, and although some of them were scorched, they were not damaged to any extent.

The estimated loss to Milledgeville Lodge No. 713, I. O. O. F. is between $3,000 and $4,000. The building was insured for $2,500 and the fixtures and lodge property at $700. The Rebekah lodge lost all paraphernalia and records.

The Henry Pearson general store, occupying one of the large first floor rooms and containing the postoffice, suffered a loss of at least $2,500, and Mr. Pearson carried $1,000. His loss above insurance is at least $1500.

While, some of the mail in the postoffice was saved, a large portion of it was consumed. The postoffice was opened temporarily in a small building across the street.

Bank Cases Are Settled

The wreck caused by the breaking of the Kingston bank some time ago is gradually being cleaned away. On this point the Chillicothe News-Advertiser Friday says:

"Another one of the cases growing out of the failure, was compromised in Common Pleas court on Friday morning, it being that of the Sears & Nichols Co. vs. Frank Sosman, receiver and the Huntington National bank of Columbus. Just previous to the failure of the bank, the cashier, Nolan Gartner, turned over to the Columbus bank two notes for security, one being from Sears & Nichols for $1000 and the other from Pardee and Spencer for $600.

"To offset their note of $1000 the Sears & Nichols company had on deposit in the Kingston bank, $527.19, and it was agreed that this amount should be deducted. Accordingly, the Columbus bank surrendered the notes to the receiver, and agreed to accept a dividend on their claim. Sears & Nichols secure their deposit in full and on payment of $172.81 to the receiver, the note for $1000 was surrendered.

"Receiver Sosman of the defunct bank will benefit by the transaction, because he believes that the Pardee and Spencer note can be collected. W. G. Hyde represented Mr. Sosman; Mr. Game of Columbus, the Huntington bank and S. F. Garrett, for Sears & Nichols.

First Meeting Y. M. C. A.

A hundred members of the Y. M. C. A. attended the first formal meeting for organization in the Presbyterian church Friday night.

Mr. Henry Brownell was made chairman of the meeting and Mr. Ray F. Zaner, secretary.

A constitution was adopted after which it was voted that the chair appoint four men to place, before the association 14 names from which will be elected seven directors of the Y. M. C. A. This election will be held two weeks from last night, April 22nd in the First Baptist church.

Chillicothe Presbytery

On Monday, April the 15th, the Chillicothe Presbytery convenes in the Presbyterian church of this city for its annual spring meeting.

It is expected that forty ministers and delegates will be present from the district.

The Presbytery opens at 7:30 in the evening with preaching and communion. Rev. Wm. M. Hindman, D. D., of Chillicothe, will deliver the sermon, the retiring moderator, Dr. McCauley, having left his recent pastorate in Wilmington.

All church people will be welcomed at this opening meeting.

Tuesday will be taken up with the business of the Presbytery.

At a recent meeting of the Springfield Commercial Club, the question of assisting in financing the Springfield and Washington Traction line was presented and discussed. Stacy Rankin of South Charleston outlining what was desired by Mr. Baker of this city, and as a result $50,000 has been pledged to extend the road to this city.

Mr. Rankin, according to Springfield newspaper reports said that the public service commission had granted the insurance of $500,000 of bonds for the road and that about $100,000 was wanted from Springfield capitalists and banks. Another $100,000 is expected to be raised, $50,000 in Washington and $50,000 in South Charleston.

The present 15 miles of road with its rolling stock is valued at $328,000. It is free from debt and in the last 6 months has netted its owner $5,000 above many improvements.

Mr. Baker gave an estimate of the present traffic, stating that an average of 160 persons were being carried daily on the three hour schedule. After the extension is completed he said an hourly schedule would be maintained between Springfield and Washington.

Friday Messrs. S. L. Patterson, Stacy B. Rankin and J. Fred Anderson, secretary of the Commercial club visited three banks to place part of $100,000 allotted to Springfield to assist in extending the road and secured and placed $50,000 worth of bonds. Other banks will be visited at once and prospects for placing at least $100,000 of the amount are bright.

According to the plans of promotion this city is to take $70,000 worth of bonds, and the intervening territory between Springfield and this city is to take $30,000 in bonds. This will bring the total amount up to $200,000, and Mr. Baker will probably supply the remainder. The money will be in the hands of a board of trustees, consisting of two bankers from that city, two from Springfield and one from South Charleston, who will pay out the money as needed in the construction.

With the new turn in the affairs, indications are bright for early commencement of the road's extension, and this may be done within the month if the remainder of the necessary amount in stock is subscribed.

The report that the D. T. & I. would operate motor cars between this city and Lima if the road is constructed, is without foundation, as that road is not in a financial condition to undertake plans which would result in a large outlay of money.

Denver Will Set New Record

Denver, Colo., April 13. Entertainment features of an elaborate nature are being prepared for the visiting Knights at the Thirty-second Triennial Conclave, which will be held in Denver from August 12 to 15, 1913. So thorough is the organization which has this work in charge that even at this early date plans are far beyond the tentative stage.

R. E. Sir George W. Valley, chairman of the Triennial Committee, has gathered around him an active force of subcommittees which has taken hold of the many details of the hereabout task of preparing for such an important national affair as the conclave in a manner that assures visiting fraternal the time of their lives.

El Jebel Temple, the beautiful Masonic structure which stands on the brow of Capitol Hill, overlooking the magnificent Rocky Mountains, has been engaged by Colorado Commandery No. 1, for the entire week beginning August 11, where open house will be maintained for visiting fraternal.

Colorado Commandery No. 25, of Denver, has engaged the Broadway theater for the same purpose, and between the two visitors will be entertained in regal splendor.

Everybody in Denver is looking forward with enthusiastic interest to the conclave. This interest extends to every city, town and hamlet in the state, for it should be understood that there are many people in Colorado who can hark back to the year 1892, when the Knights Templar met in Denver at one of the most brilliant conclaves in the history of the Masonic Order. No convention held in Denver since has eclipsed the splendor of that great event, and Sir Knights throughout the country who visited Denver on that occasion talk about the hospitality of Colorado's capital city even today when a group of them get together.

But Denver will make the second visit of the Knights Templar a far more brilliant event than the first. The electrical illuminations at night will surpass anything heretofore seen in this city. Denver is known far and wide as the "City of Lights," but during the sojourn of the Templars Denver will be a "Blaze of Lights" each night, the decorative effect softened here and there by a color scheme that will be artistic and beautiful.

The chairman of the Electrical Illumination Committee is Sir William J. Barker, vice president of the Denver Gas and Electric Light Company, and he says the entire world will have something to talk about when he gets through with his lighting scheme for Denver during Conclave Week.

A handsome booklet showing many scenic attractions of Colorado, and beautiful and interesting scenes in Denver, has been published by the Triennial Committee for distribution to the different commanderies throughout the country.

Says Building A Perfect Gem

Mr. A. G. Bookwalter, Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of the State of Ohio, was in town Saturday morning and held a conference with General Secretary Ray F. Zaner. Mr. Bookwalter spent some time in looking over the association building and pronounced it "A gem."

In speaking of the building he said: "I think without exception this is the finest and most admirably arranged building for its size, that I have seen. It certainly is a gem. I know that when your people have a chance to look it over and understand its workings, they will appreciate more and more the value of such an organization in their community."

Mr. Bookwalter will be here to address the members of the Y. M. C. A. at their next business meeting to be held in the Baptist church on Friday night, April 26th.

CLAIM EXTENSION OF BAKER ROAD IS SURE

Three Springfield Banks Take $50,000 in Bonds and Prospects Are Bright for Early Commencement of Extension.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

A gay affair of last night was a spring vacation dance of the younger set in the ball room of the Pythian Castle.

Twenty-six couples attended and the music was splendid, furnished by Walter Head, of Greenfield, pianist, and Tom Murray, drums.

A buffet luncheon was served. Walter Thompson, Robert Rothrock and Ray Griffith composed the dance committee.

Young Burnett, indicted for burglary and larceny, appeared and gave bond in the sum of $200.

Bank Cases Are Settled

The wreck caused by the breaking of the Kingston bank some time ago is gradually being cleaned away. On this point the Chillicothe News-Advertiser Friday says:

"Another one of the cases growing out of the failure, was compromised in Common Pleas court on Friday morning, it being that of the Sears & Nichols Co. vs. Frank Sosman, receiver and the Huntington National bank of Columbus. Just previous to the failure of the bank the cashier, Nolan Gartner, turned over to the Columbus bank two notes for security, one being from Sears & Nichols for $1000 and the other from Parlee and Spencer for $600.

"To offset their note of $1000 the Sears & Nichols company had on deposit in the Kingston bank $527.19, and it was agreed that this amount should be deducted. Accordingly, the Columbus bank surrendered the notes to the receiver, and agreed to accept a dividend on their claim. Sears & Nichols secure their deposit in full and on payment of $472.81 to the receiver, the note for $1000 was surrendered.

"Receiver Sosman of the defunct bank will benefit by the transaction, because he believes that the Parlee and Spencer note can be collected. W. G. Hyde represented Mr. Sosman. Mr. Gamie of Columbus, the Huntington bank and S. F. Garrett, for Sears & Nichols.

First Meeting Y. M. C. A.

A hundred members of the Y. M. C. A. attended the first formal meeting for organization in the Presbyterian church Friday night.

Mr. Henry Brownell was made chairman of the meeting and Mr. Ray F. Zaner, secretary.

A constitution was adopted after which it was voted that the chair appoint four men to place, before the association 14 names, from which will be elected seven directors of the Y. M. C. A. This election will be held two weeks from last night, April 22nd in the First Baptist church.

Chillicothe Presbytery

On Monday, April the 15th, the Chillicothe Presbytery convenes in the Presbyterian church of this city for its annual spring meeting.

It is expected that forty ministers and delegates will be present from the district.

The Presbytery opens at 7:30 in the evening with preaching and communion. Rev. Wm. M. Hindman, D. D., of Chillicothe, will deliver the sermon, the retiring moderator, Dr. McCauley, having left his recent pastorate in Wilfington.

All church people will be welcomed at this opening meeting.

Tuesday will be taken up with the business of the Presbytery.

At a recent meeting of the Springfield Commercial Club, the question of assisting in financing the Springfield and Washington Traction line was presented and discussed. Stacy Rankin of South Charleston outlining what was desired by Mr. Baker of this city, and as a result $50,000 has been pledged to extend the road to this city.

Mr. Rankin, according to Springfield newspaper reports said that the public service commission had granted the insurance of $500,000 of bonds for the road and that about $100,000 was wanted from Springfield capitalists and banks. Another $100,000 is expected to be raised, $70,000 in Washington and $30,000 in South Charleston.

The present 15 miles of road with its rolling stock is valued at $328,000. It is free from debt and in the last 6 months has netted its owner $5,000 above many improvements.

Mr. Baker gave an estimate of the present traffic, stating that an average of 160 persons were being carried daily on the three hour schedule. After the extension is completed he said an hourly schedule would be maintained between Springfield and Washington.

Friday Messrs. S. L. Patterson, Stacy B. Rankin and J. Fred Anderson, secretary of the Commercial club visited three banks to place part of $100,000 allotted to Springfield to assist in extending the road and secured and placed $50,000 worth of bonds. Other banks will be visited at once, and prospects for placing at least $100,000 of the amount are bright.

According to the plans of promotion this city is to take $70,000 worth of bonds, and the intervening territory between Springfield and this city is to take $30,000 in bonds. This will bring the total amount up to $200,000 and Mr. Baker will probably supply the remainder. The money will be in the hands of a board of trustees, consisting of two bankers from this city, two from Springfield and one from South Charleston, who will pay out the money as needed in the construction.

With the new turn in the affairs, indications are bright for early commencement of the road's extension, and this may be done within the month if the remainder of the necessary amount in stock is subscribed.

The report that the D. T. & I. would operate motor cars between this city and Lima if the road is constructed, is without foundation, as that road is not in a financial condition to undertake plans which would result in a large outlay of money.

Another Petition For Road Building

A petition from a number of property owners on the Leesburg pike, commencing at the corporation line and extending to a point four miles south, for the improvement under state aid, has been filed with the commissioners, but no action taken. The petition was accompanied by resolutions from the Concord and Union township trustees, declaring for the improvement.

Some time ago a petition and the necessary resolution was presented for the improvement of the Bloomingburg and Midway pike from a point immediately north of Bloomingburg to the Madison-Fayette county line. No action has been taken upon the first petition presented, as no more road can be improved until next year when the State Aid Fund will be paid into the county treasury for the year 1913.

Denver Will Set New Record

Denver, Colo., April 13.—Entertainment features of an elaborate nature are being prepared for the visiting Knights at the Thirty-second Triennial Conclave, which will be held in Denver from August 12 to 15, 1913. So thorough is the organization which has this work in charge that even at this early date plans are far beyond the tentative stage.

R. E. Sir George W. Vallery, chairman of the Triennial Committee, has gathered around him an active force of subcommittees which has taken hold of the many details of the hereafter task of preparing for such an important national affair as the conclave in a manner that assures visiting fraters the time of their lives.

El Jebel Temple, the beautiful Masonic structure which stands on the brow of Capitol Hill, overlooking the magnificent Rocky Mountains, has been engaged by Colorado Commandery No. 1, for the entire week beginning August 11, where open house will be maintained for visiting fraters.

Colorado Commandery No. 25, of Denver, has engaged the Broadway theater for the same purpose, and between the two visitors will be entertained in regal splendor.

Everybody in Denver is looking forward with enthusiastic interest to the conclave. This interest extends to every city, town and hamlet in the state, for it should be understood that there are many people in Colorado who can hark back to the year 1892, when the Knights Templar met in Denver at one of the most brilliant conclaves in the history of the Masonic Order. No convention held in Denver since has eclipsed the splendor of that great event, and Sir Knights throughout the country who visited Denver on that occasion talk about the hospitality of Colorado's capital city even today when a group of them get together.

But Denver will make the second visit of the Knights Templar a far more brilliant event than the first. The electrical illuminations at night will surpass anything heretofore seen in this city. Denver is known far and wide as the "City of Lights," but during the sojourn of the Templars Denver will be a "Blaze of Lights," each night, the decorative effect softened here and there by a color scheme that will be artistic and beautiful.

The chairman of the Electrical Illumination Committee is Sir William J. Barker, vice president of the Denver Gas and Electric Light Company, and he says the entire world will have something to talk about when he gets through with his lighting scheme for Denver during Conclave Week.

A handsome booklet showing many scenic attractions of Colorado, and beautiful and interesting scenes in Denver, has been published by the Triennial Committee for distribution to the different commanderies throughout the country.

Says Building A Perfect Gem

Mr. A. G. Bookwalter, Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of the State of Ohio, was in town Saturday morning and held a conference with General Secretary Ray F. Zaner. Mr. Bookwalter spent some time in looking over the association building and pronounced it "A gem."

In speaking of the building he said: "I think without exception this is the finest and most admirably arranged building for its size that I have seen. It certainly is a gem. I know that when your people have a chance to look it over and understand its workings, they will appreciate more and more the value of such an organization in their community."

Mr. Bookwalter will be here to address the members of the Y. M. C. A. at their next business meeting to be held in the Baptist church on Friday night, April 26th.

HOLIDAY SCHEDULE.

A writer in the Survey observes that the irregular distribution of the holidays throughout the year and their changing coincidence with the days of the week often entail hardship on the workaday world.

"For instance, where a holiday falls on Tuesday or Friday, many business concerns seize the opportunity in dull time to cut their pay-roll by closing down on the Monday preceding or Saturday following, thus enforcing a two-day holiday with corresponding loss to the employee; then again, when such holidays fall in mid week, the holiday spirit on the days preceding and following seriously interferes with the efficiency of the worker and thus involves a hardship on the employer."

The remedy proposed is the transposition of most holidays to Mondays and their more even distribution throughout the year; thus Washington Day would be observed on the Monday following February 22, Lincoln Day on the first Monday in April, and so on. "This order would secure for our industrial army a two and one-half days' respite from toil, with loss of only one day's pay, and would insure for the employer a better week's product from five consecutive days' labor after two and one-half days' rest."

The reformer excepts Christmas and New Year's Day from the working of this rule, but he certainly ought to make the reformation a little more complete while we are at it, and free Easter from its adhesions to the vernal equinox by giving it a definite date.

OROZCO DEFIES US.

The action of General Orozco in practically defying the government of the United States to undertake the protection of its citizens now in Mexico, may precipitate war sooner than many expected.

Orozco the peon mule driver, suddenly elevated to power, has, as is usual in such case, a tremendous store of ignorance, an exaggerated idea of his power, and an utter lack of appreciation of the rights, privileges and strength of others.

The Americans along the border have spoiled Orozco by giving him too much attention. The result is a bad case of swell head which may plunge two nations into war. The rebel general is not the type of man to receive attention and obtain power without being spoiled.

His treachery to Madero is one proof of that fact and his defiance of this nation another.

Should Ballot Be Denied Woman Because of Her Sex?

By TALCOTT WILLIAMS,
Director of Pulitzer
School of Journalism

I AM not one of those who believe suffrage should be conferred on any individual because he is a man or denied any individual because she is a WOMAN. The duty of suffrage should be conferred solely with reference to the NEEDS OF GOOD AND WISE GOVERNMENT, and women are quite as well able to deal with such issues as men.

Nor am I one of those who believe that the polling place is UNFIT FOR A GOOD WOMAN TO FREQUENT. If this should be so it must be changed or the republic cannot endure.

STILL LESS DO I AGREE WITH THE DEGRADING ARGUMENT THAT SUFFRAGE SHOULD BE CONFERRED UPON WOMEN BECAUSE IT WILL BENEFIT THEM. SUFFRAGE MUST BE A DUTY AND NOT A PRIVILEGE.

We have been realizing this more fully during the past twenty years and have been hedging suffrage about with restrictions as to residence, as to registry, as to many other things that may keep the duty within the selected group to whom it ideally belongs. There is danger in multiplying the numbers of this group. Statistics will show you that one in every three of those entitled to vote FAILS TO EXERCISE THE PRIVILEGE.

Massachusetts, with 641,000 men upon the registry books, at the last election voted only 441,000 of them. In this large margin of those who might vote, but don't, there rests the peril to the republic. Yet we cannot close our eyes to the dangers of making the number too small.

I know that the PATRIOTISM OF WOMEN IS DEEPER, as it is more silent, than that of men. Theirs are not the prizes, but the sacrifices, of devotion. Theirs are not the rewards, but the sufferings. This has been so, it is so, and it must continue to be so, for CIVILIZATION DEEPENS THE DIE OF SEX.

Poetry—Today

PERHAPS.

Perhaps some day—some distant day—
We human folk will have our way
About most everything:
Perhaps the time will come when men
Will have a say-so now and then,
And humming birds will sing.

There are so many things that we
Would change, supposing we were free
To regulate the world;
Many a flag that floats today
Would drop if we could have our way
And other flags unfurl.

No certain lectures would there be
No sickness on the rolling sea.
No time-locks we must punch;
We'd have no galling debts to pay
We'd have two hours every day
For dinner, one for lunch.

Our weather would be always right—
No woman then would be a fright
In her curl-papered hair!
Oh, I would fain stop living here
Where, everything is dull and drear,
And wait for Then, and There!

STEVENSON AT SARANAC LAKE

Ice and Snow Were Abhorrent to This Great Literary Genius—Author Always an Optimist.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Ever since its occupancy by Robert Louis Stevenson, conceded to have been one of the world's greatest literary lights, a certain yellow cottage at Saranac Lake has been an object of great interest to visitors at that famed resort for the treatment of tuberculosis, to temporary residents and to townfolks. A writer in a medical publication gives an interesting account of the manner in which the great master of prose put in that Adirondack winter of 1887. Stevenson,

Stevenson's Old Cottage.

It will be recalled, throughout his lifetime never approximated a condition which might be termed health. Always tubercular, at times he was so near death's door that it seemed he could not possibly live. But something, whether it was the intense interest he took in living or his certainty that he would be allowed to finish the work in which his heart was centered, seemed to ward off the dark angel.

His health," says the writer, "improved, but his exotic nature found it hard, indeed to endure the ice and the snow and the bitter cold."

"The great novelist of the 'outré' preferred to sit by the log fire, watch the fantastic flames, and talk."

Dr. Trudeau, who visited him frequently, has observed that Stevenson "used to rail in forcible but beautiful and picturesque language at the cold, at the snow, at the cloudy days and the succession of them, and the lack of color and sunshine. His idealistic and artistic temperament clung to all that was beautiful in life as expressed in nature, in art, in form, light and color; in thought, in poetry, and in imagination. He deliberately turned his back on the cold facts of science and life, ignored them as much as possible, and shunned the discussion of such subjects as poverty, disease, sorrow and suffering with which we were more or less surrounded."

"On Saturday afternoons Stevenson made it a practice to be 'at home' to those who wished to call. Anyone might come, and many took advantage of the opportunity. But he seemed to get little pleasure out of these functions."

"But from one visit Stevenson derived only unalloyed satisfaction and delight. This was when Richard Mansfield came to the cottage. In the living room, while Stevenson sat by the log fire, which fitfully and uncertainly lit up the room, Mansfield on a table in a corner of the room gave his marvelous and gruesome impersonation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Stevenson, who has been termed 'the sick hero,' was ever an optimist, despite the most dreadful 'seasons for being the reverse.'"

PERHAPS.

Perhaps some day—some distant day—
We human folk will have our way
About most everything:
Perhaps the time will come when men
Will have a say-so now and then,
And humming birds will sing.

There are so many things that we
Would change, supposing we were free
To regulate the world,
Many a flag that floats today
Would drop if we could have our way
And other flags unfurl.

No curtain lectures would there be,
No sickness on the rolling sea,
No time-locks w, must punch,
We'd have no galling debts to pay,
We'd have two hours every day
For dinner, one for lunch.

Our weather would be always right—
No woman then would be a fright
In her curl-papered hair!
Oh, I would fain stop living here
Where, everything is dull and drear,
And wait for Then, and There!

STEVENSON AT SARANAC LAKE

Ice and Snow Were Abhorrent to This Great Literary Genius—Author Always an Optimist.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Ever since its occupancy by Robert Louis Stevenson, conceded to have been one of the world's greatest literary lights, a certain yellow cottage at Saranac Lake has been an object of great interest to visitors at that famed resort for the treatment of tuberculosis, to temporary residents and to townfolks. A writer in a medical publication gives an interesting account of the manner in which the great master of prose put in that Adirondack winter of 1887. Stevenson,

Stevenson's Old Cottage.

It will be recalled, throughout his lifetime never approximated a condition which might be termed health. Always tubercular, at times he was so near death's door that it seemed he could not possibly live. But something, whether it was the intense interest he took in living or his certainty that he would be allowed to finish the work in which his heart was centered, seemed to ward off the dark angel.

"His health," says the writer, "improved, but his exotic nature found it hard, indeed, to endure the ice and the snow and the bitter cold."

"The great novelist of the outpour preferred to sit by the log fire, watch the fantastic flames, and talk."

Dr. Trudeau, who visited him frequently, has observed that Stevenson "used to rail in forcible but beautiful and picturesque language at the cold, at the snow, at the cloudy days and the succession of them, and the lack of color and sunshine. His idealistic and artistic temperament clung to all that was beautiful in life as expressed in nature, in art, in form, light and color; in thought, in poetry, and in imagination. He deliberately turned his back on the cold facts of science and life, ignored them as much as possible, and shunned the discussion of such subjects as poverty, disease, sorrow and suffering with which we were more or less surrounded."

"On Saturday afternoons Stevenson made it a practice to be at home to those who wished to call. Anyone might come, and many took advantage of the opportunity. But he seemed to get little pleasure out of these functions."

"But from one visit Stevenson derived only unalloyed satisfaction and delight. This was when Richard Mansfield came to the cottage. In the living room, while Stevenson sat by the log fire, which fitfully and uncertainly lit up the room, Mansfield, on a table in a corner of the room gave his marvelous and gruesome impersonation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Stevenson, who has been termed 'the sick hero,' was ever an optimist, despite the most dreadful reasons for being the reverse."

THE BASE BALL WORLD

SPORT LETTER

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 12, 1912.

The world's championship for 1912 will not be decided by the games with which the National and American league's season was inaugurated Thursday. Many players who started in the opening jousts will not be fast company when the curtain ring down on the 154 game schedule in the fall. In base ball, more than in any other line of sport, one victory does not make a championship, and a one-day slugger is not necessarily a hot rival of Ty Cobb. So the outcome of Thursday's battles affords no definite line upon which to form opinions of the outcome of the championship races in the two big circuits. Some of the teams starting in the season Thursday are not yet in shape to do their best, or their worst, the case may be. Several are suffering severe handicaps in the way of having valuable players injured, this being especially true of the Philadelphia Nationals, who will be minus the services of Pitcher Chalmers and Outfielder Magee for at least a month. So, no matter what the results of these first games were, do not allow them to exert an influence in making that bet of a ten cent cigar that the Boston Nationals will be the next world's champions, with the St. Louis Browns fighting them for the honor.

The Reds, in their spring series of games on the local lot, demonstrated that they are able to cope with some of the strongest teams in the business, their even breaks with the Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers showing them to be in the class with these teams, both of which are picked for first division honors in the American League this year. The Reds' greatest weakness in these games developed in the work of the infield, and this undoubtedly was due to the roughness of the diamond, which had been soddied only a week and which is anything but the level surface that it should be in order that the infielders may do themselves justice. It is expected that several days of careful manuring will put this portion of the playing field in first class condition, after which the infielders will be able to prove that they are made of the right material.

Visiting ball players, club owners and building experts declare that the new Cincinnati ball park is easily the most complete plant for giving of sport exhibitions in the country. It will no longer be necessary for the Sunday visitor to suffer agony with those new shoes standing for hours watching the practice and the game, for there are seats for 25,000 people provided in the new stands, and that is about as many as will come out to see any game during the regular season. Every seat, whether box or bleacher, has a perfect view of the entire diamond, and with a larger playing field than heretofore, Cincinnati fans will enjoy better sport than ever before. It is expected that both the Pirates, who play here on Sunday, April 14, and the St. Louis Cardinals, who come on Sunday, April 21, will come pretty near filling all the seats.

The racing game in Mexico has finally reached a stage where it pays, and next season will see a general improvement in the line of turf attractions at the Juarez track, which is located just across the river from El Paso. Despite the various revolutions, which kept things in a turmoil on the northern border, the American promoters at Juarez earned a profit of $50,000, with excellent prospects of increasing that amount considerably next year. A new hotel will be erected at El Paso to accommodate visitors, larger stakes will be offered by the track management, with the expected result that the attendance will be larger and classier.

The stay of Jim Flynn, the most prominent of the "white hopes" during the present week, has developed nothing that would lead one to believe that that Colorado fireman would be wearing the world's championship title after his battle with Jack Johnson on the fourth of July. Flynn looks like an ordinary fighter, with much strength, but nothing of the artistic to make him an even money proposition in his coming scrap with the colored champion. It is not unlikely that Flynn soon will take the same course as the other "white hopes," Carl Morris, who has returned to his locomotive down in Oklahoma, with the remark that "there's no use spoiling a good engine to make a poor fighter."

It is promised that practically every big racing stable in America will be represented at the spring meeting of the Latonia Jockey Club, which opens on Decoration Day, May 30, and continues for a season of thirty days. This means that Cincinnati will witness a higher class of racing this year than ever before, a fact which will add greatly to the increased interest which has been manifested in the game here during the past two years. The Latonia Derby, which is at a mile and a half, probably will be run on June 8th, with such famous starters as Worth, Sprite, Presumption, The Manager, Sonata and others.

GINGER WILL ATTRACT COIN

"Silk" O'Loughlin Is Strong Advocate of Speed in All Games of Amusement—Games Too Slow.

Silk O'Loughlin, the American league umpire, is a strong advocate of speed. He says the games are becoming too slow and he blames the players. In discussing the fault the noted diamond judge said yesterday: "Put ginger into any public amusement and you'll attract and delight patrons who pay their money at the box office. A lively act in vaudeville or a snappy play will crowd a theater any time. A scientific swiftly moving boxer will command big money at a boxing club because people will pay more to see him spar than a clumsy slugger. Baseball is the same. Speedy playing is essential toward keeping up the interest. If the games are allowed to drag the fans grow tired and lose interest."

"I've always maintained that between innings the players going to and from the benches should be made to hurry. It looks better than to see them slouch to their positions. When the American league was organized the games were played so rapidly that there was too much hurry and hustle. Games were frequently played in one hour and 15 minutes and I really believe a majority of the fans were satisfied. But in recent years the players themselves have adopted slothful methods with the result that the games are again too long."

"Much time is wasted by the batteries. The spitball pitchers consume most of it by moistening their fingers and preparing to take aim. Then again some of them can't make out the signs given by the catchers. In such cases the pitchers stand still, looking at the backstop's fingers as they indicate the signs in the hollow of the mitts. If they don't understand the pitchers shake their heads and in many cases go up near the plate to hold confabs, when as a matter of fact the field umpire and the infielders can see the signs as plain as day."

NAVIN SPOILS TIGER TRADE

Prevented Exchange of Wood and Carrigan for Pitcher Eddie Summers and Catcher Schmidt.

It's cause for jubilation and thanksgiving to the other clubs of the American league that a little deal planned for at one time did not go through. John I. Taylor was sore on Bill Carrigan because the backstop wanted more money.

So he planned to trade Joe Wood and Bill for Eddie Summers and Schmidt of the Tigers, and Jennings grabbed at the offer. The Tigers would have got all the better of the trade, and with Wood pitching in front of a team like the Tigers he would be unbeatable.

Just as Jennings had everything arranged to give a useless catcher for one of the best backstops in the league, together with a half-rater in the pitching line for a swell twirler, President Navin stepped in and crashed the deal. He heard stories about the physical condition of Wood that made the president feel he was not in good shape, and he swallowed them, bait hook and anchor. Otherwise the snips around the circuit would have the megaphone man bellowing: "For Detroit, Wood and Carrigan."

Almeida, the Cuban player on Hank O'Day's team, is likely to get his walking papers.

The Chillicothe (O.) club has signed Harry McCall, last year with Marion for first base, and Orlando Keller last year with Erie, for third base.

Dan Brown, an outfielder picked up from the Tidewater league for the New York Americans last fall, by Scott Irwin has been turned over to Bridgeport.

Jack Reedy, last year at Macon, failed to come to terms with Cleveland, Tenn., and Zimonsky will as a consequence be retained as manager of the Appalachian league team.

Pitcher Johnny Cook, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball last season and so badly hurt he decided to quit the game, has reconsidered and signed his contract with Ulster.

Manager Mike Kelly of St. Paul failed to make any deals as a result of his visit to the major league camps at Hot Springs, but has hopes of landing something to bolster his Saints.

Bert Delmas, for five years shortstop on the Los Angeles team, has quit the game and will this year act as manager-captain of the independent team at Modesto, Cal., his home town.

Bill Crissell, the veteran southpaw slant dispenser, has signed with the Holyoke club of the Connecticut league. Crissell has forsaken the mound, his arm having lost speed, and will try for the outfield.

Memphis, which thought it had secured Catcher Tommenan from the Boston Americans, when the New York club refused to waive, has now purchased him from Wolverton, paying the waiver price of $1,500.

Alarming Total Of Fire Losses

The following paragraph from the Western Underwriter of March 21, 1912, should command the serious attention of every citizen of Ohio.

Fire losses in Ohio the week of March 10th-16th, were not less than $671,000, of which Columbus furnished a quota almost equal to the city's separate fire losses for all of 1910 and all of 1911. This stupendous total for seven days adds to known fire losses for January approximately $900,000, more than $1,000,000 so far as known in February, and the first nine days of the month added materially to the fire loss record. The fire loss for the year to and including March 16th, is almost fifty cents per capita of the state's population.

This is an understatement rather than an exaggeration for later reports have swelled the total considerably.

Emphasis is to be placed upon the closing sentence of the paragraph above quoted. Let us read it again. "The fire loss for the year to and including March 16th, is almost fifty cents per capita of the state's population."

Such is the record for two and one-half months of 1912. Fifty cents per capita loss is greater than that of Germany for the entire year of 1911. And this vast loss is absolute and irrecoverable. The situation revealed by these figures is one which should command immediate and most serious consideration, not alone at the hands of insurance men and fire departments but of all our people.

The fire marshal's office in the year 1911 made thousands of inspections in Ohio and as a result of orders issued thousands of fire-traps were torn down, and other thousands of buildings were repaired and dangerous conditions remedied. But it is manifestly impossible with the necessarily limited force in the department to inspect all the buildings in the state. The department must largely depend upon our citizens in the various localities for knowledge of conditions. When any condition which appears dangerous to any person in a community is called to the attention of this office it will be given prompt attention and this is about the only practicable way in which to operate.

When a postmaster dies it is the rule of the government that the bondsmen get together and designate some one to act as postmaster until a successor of deceased is appointed and qualified and the old bond is relieved.

In the case of Mr. H. C. Several are suffering severe handicaps in the way of having valuable players injured, this being especially true of the Philadelphia Nationals, who will be minus the services of Pitcher Chalmers and Outfielder Magee for at least a month. So, no matter what the results of these first games were, do not allow them to exert an influence in making that bet of a ten cent cigar that the Boston Nationals will be the next world's champions, with the St. Louis Browns fighting them for the honor.

The Reds, in their spring series of games on the local lot, demonstrated that they are able to cope with some of the strongest teams in the business, their even breaks with the Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers showing them to be in the class with these teams, both of which are picked for first division honors in the American League this year. The Reds' greatest weakness in these games developed in the work of the infield, and this undoubtedly was due to the roughness of the diamond, which had been sodded only a week and which is anything but the level surface that it should be in order that the infielders may do themselves justice. It is expected that several days of careful manuring will put this portion of the playing field in first class condition after which the infielders will be able to prove that they are made of the right material.

Visiting ball players, club owners and building experts declare that the new Cincinnati ball park is easily the most complete plant for giving of sport exhibitions in the country. It will no longer be necessary for the Sunday visitor to suffer agony with those new shoes standing for hours watching the practice, and the game, for there are seats for 25,000 people provided in the new stands, and that is about as many as will come out to see any game during the regular season. Every seat, whether box or bleacher, has a perfect view of the entire diamond; and with a larger playing field than heretofore, Cincinnati fans will enjoy better sport than ever before. It is expected that both the Pirates, who play here on Sunday, April 14, and the St. Louis Cardinals, who come on Sunday, April 21, will come pretty near filling all the seats.

The racing game in Mexico has finally reached a stage where it pays, and next season will see a general improvement in the line of turf attractions at the Juarez track, which is located just across the river from El Paso. Despite the various revolutions, which kept things in a turmoil on the northern border, the American promoters at Juarez earned a profit of $50,000, with excellent prospects of increasing that amount considerably next year. A new hotel will be erected at El Paso to accommodate visitors, larger stakes will be offered by the track management, with the expected result that the attendance will be larger and classier.

The stay of Jim Flynn, the most prominent of the "white hopes" during the present week, has developed nothing that would lead one to believe that that Colorado fireman would be wearing the world's championship title after his battle with Jack Johnson on the fourth of July. Flynn looks like an ordinary fighter, with much strength, but nothing of the artistic to make him an even money proposition in his coming scrap with the colored champion. It is not unlikely that Flynn soon will take the same course as the other "white hope," Carl Morris, who has returned to his locomotive down in Oklahoma, with the remark that "there's no use spooling a good engineer to make a poor fighter."

It is promised that practically every big racing stable in America will be represented at the spring meeting of the Latonia Jockey Club, which opens on Decoration Day, May 29, and continues for a season of thirty days. This means that Cincinnati will witness a higher class of racing this year than ever before, a fact which will add greatly to the increased interest which has been manifested in the game here during the past two years. The Latonia Derby, which is at a mile and a half, probably will be run on June 8th, with such famous starters as Worth, Sprite, Presumption, The Manager, Sonoda and others.

GINGER WILL ATTRACT COIN

"Silk" O'Loughlin Is Strong Advocate of Speed in All Games of Amusement—Games Too Slow.

Silk O'Loughlin, the American league umpire, is a strong advocate of speed. He says the games are becoming too slow and he blames the players. In discussing the fault the noted diamond judge said yesterday: "Put ginger into any public amusement and you'll attract and delight patrons who pay their money at the box office. A lively act in vaudeville or a snappy play will crowd a theater any time. A scientific, swiftly moving boxer will command big money at a boxing club because people will pay more to see him spar than a clumsy slugger. Baseball is the same. Speedy playing is essential toward keeping up the interest. If the games are allowed to drag the fans grow tired and lose interest."

"I've always maintained that between innings the players going to and from the benches should be made to hurry. It looks better than to see them slouch to their positions. When the American league was organized the games were played so rapidly that there was too much hurry and hustle. Games were frequently played in one hour and 15 minutes and I really believe a majority of the fans were satisfied. But in recent years the players themselves have adopted slothful methods with the result that the games are again too long."

"Much time is wasted by the batteries. The spitball pitchers consume most of it by moistening their fingers and preparing to take aim. Then again some of them can't make out the signs given by the catchers. In such cases the pitchers stand still, looking at the backstop's fingers as they indicate the signs in the hollow of the mitts. If they don't understand the pitchers shake their heads and in many cases go up near the plate to hold confabs, when as a matter of fact the field umpire and the infielders can see the signs as plain as day."

Prevented Exchange of Wood and Carrigan for Pitcher Eddie Summers and Catcher Schmidt.

It's cause for jubilation and thanksgiving to the other clubs of the American league that a little deal planned for at one time did not go through. John I. Taylor was sore on Bill Carrigan because the backstop wanted more money.

So he planned to trade Joe Wood and Bill for Eddie Summers and Schmidt of the Tigers, and Jennings grabbed at the offer. The Tigers would have got all the better of the trade, and with Wood pitching in front of a team like the Tigers he would be unbeatable.

Just as Jennings had everything arranged to give a useless pitcher for one of the best backstops in the league, together with a half-rater in the pitching line for a swell twirler, President Navin stepped in and crabbled the deal. He heard stories about the physical condition of Wood that made the president feel he was not in good shape, and he swallowed them, bait hook and anchor. Otherwise the umpire around the circuit would have the megaphone man bellowing: "For Detroit, Wood and Carrigan."

Almida, the Cuban player on Hank O'Day's team, is likely to get his walking papers.

The Chillicothe (O.) club has signed Harry McCall, last year with Marion, for first base, and Orlando Keller last year with Erie, for third base.

Dan Brown, an outfielder picked up from the Tidewater league for the New York Americans last fall, by Scout Irwin, has been turned over to Bridgeport.

Jack Reddy, last year at Macon, failed to come to terms with Cleveland, Tenn., and Zimonsky will as a consequence be retained as manager of the Appalachian league team.

Pitcher Johnny Bock, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball last season and so badly hurt he decided to quit the game, has reconsidered and signed his contract with Leno.

Manager Mike Kelly of St. Paul failed to make any deals as a result of his visit to the major league camps at Hot Springs, but has hopes of landing something to bolster his Saints.

Bert DeMaio, for five years short-stop on the Los Angeles team, has quit the game and will this year act as manager/captain of the independent team at Modesto, Cal., his home town.

Bill Cristall, the veteran southpaw slant dispenser, has signed with the Holyoke club of the Connecticut league. Cristall has forsaken the mound his arm having lost speed, and will try for the outfield.

Memphis, which thought it had secured Catcher Tammeman from the Boston Americans, when the New York club refused to waive, has now purchased him from Wolverton, paying the waiver price of $1,500.

Something is wrong with the maidens we fear. Give us the girls as they used to appear. Give us the girls we once knew of yore, whose curls didn't come from a hair dressing store, Maidens who dressed with a sensible view. And just as Dame Nature intended them to. Alarming Total Of Fire Losses

The following paragraph from the Western Underwriter of March 21, 1912, should command the serious attention of every citizen of Ohio.

"Fire losses in Ohio the week of March 16th-16th, were not less than $671,000, of which Columbus furnished a quota almost equal to the city's separate fire losses for all of 1910 and all of 1911. This stupendous total for seven days adds to known fire losses for January approximately $900,000, more than $100,000 so far as known in February, and the first nine days of the month added materially to the fire loss record. The fire loss for the year, to and including March 16th, is almost fifty cents per capita of the state's population."

This is an understatement rather than an exaggeration for later reports have swelled the total considerably.

Emphasis is to be placed upon the closing sentence of the paragraph above quoted. Let us read it again: "The fire loss for the year, to and including March 16th, is almost fifty cents per capita of the state's population."

Such is the record for two and one-half months of 1912. Fifty cents per capita loss is greater than that of Germany for the entire year of 1911. And this vast loss is absolute and irrecoverable. The situation revealed by these figures is one which should command immediate and most serious consideration, not alone at the hands of insurance men and fire departments but of all our people.

The fire marshal's office in the year 1911 made thousands of inspections in Ohio and as a result of orders issued thousands of fire traps were torn down, and other thousands of buildings were repaired and dangerous conditions remedied. But it is manifestly impossible with the necessarily limited force in the department to inspect all the buildings in the state. The department must largely depend upon our citizens in the various localities for knowledge of conditions. When any condition which appears dangerous to any person in a community is called to the attention of this office it will be given prompt attention and this is about the only practicable way in which to operate.

Succeeds Husband As Postmaster

When a postmaster dies it is the rule of the government that the bondsmen get together and designate some one to act as postmaster until a successor of deceased is appointed and qualified and the old bond is relieved.

In the case of Mr. H. C. Drinkle he had as bondsmen the Fidelity & Trust Company of Baltimore, Md., and they sent a letter to Mrs. Kate Vorys Drinkle designating her as acting postmaster of Lancaster and instructing her to take charge until a successor to her deceased husband is qualified. She assumed charge at once. Lancaster Eagle.

GEARLESS GAS ENGINE FACTORY COMES HERE

GEORGE B. SWOPE AT HEAD

Factory Will Be Located in Rear of Engine House and Will Be 40 by 80 Feet—Building to Be Completed by First of Next Month.

Within the next few weeks a new enterprise will be added to Washington, and ground has already been broken for the new factory.

It is the Gearless Gas Engine Company, of Springfield, with George B. Swope, the well known machinist at the head, and the factory will be equipped for turning out gearless gas engines and a ventilator grate, of which Mr. Swope is the patentee.

The new factory will be 40x80 feet, and located immediately back of the fire department building, fronting on the alley. It will be constructed of cement blocks and for the time being will be only one story in height. Work on the foundation commenced a day or two ago, and the structure will be completed by May 1st and the factory will be grinding out gas engines by May 15th or June 1st.

Mr. Swope purchased the factory about one year ago, and it has been located in Springfield some time ago he decided to move the concern to Washington, if a man who had an option upon the plant did not make the purchase, within 90 days. The man failed to buy, and Mr. Swope decided to remove the plant to Washington as soon as he could secure quarters.

In looking about he made a contract with Mr. George Inskeep, who owns the lot upon which the structure is being erected.

The factory will start upon a small scale at first, but a little later Mr. Swope hopes to employ a much larger force and build more engines. The ventilator grate, which has proven a decided success, will also be manufactured on a scale to supply the demand as it is created.

In addition to this oxy-acetylene welding will be a specialty of the factory. No repair work other than welding will be handled.

The Gearless Gas Engine, as indicated by its name, has no gearing like the average engine, and is a model of simplicity. These engines have been in use a number of years and splendid satisfaction is claimed for them.

Two and four horse power engines will be built, and all of them will be of high grade and nominal price. The factory promises to develop into one of the city's foremost enterprises.

There will be two more eclipses during 1912, one of the moon September 26, and one of the sun October 19.

Lives for Two Weeks With Bullet in Brain

After nearly two weeks living at the point of death with a bullet in his brain, Howard Hickman, of Jamestown, who was shot by "Lige" Anderson on March 30th, died Friday at 10:00 a. m., not having regained consciousness.

The fact that the man lived an hour even, is regarded by the attending physicians as wonderful. The bullet entered his head just over the left eye, and lodged somewhere in the brain.

It will be remembered that the shooting which caused Hickman's death took place in Anderson's barber shop in Jamestown, after Anderson had appealed to the marshal for assistance, or permission to carry a gun with which to protect himself.

Anderson was indicted for shooting with intent to kill, and it is now believed the indictment will be changed to first degree murder.

Besides his wife and two children who live in this city, Hickman leaves a father and mother, John Hickman and wife, with whom he made his home in Jamestown.

During Hickman's illness it required three men to hold him in bed, notwithstanding that his right side was completely paralyzed. He was over six feet in height and of powerful build. The man was well known in this city, and it is said married his wife here, she later leaving him because of family troubles. Anderson is still in the Greene county jail.

D. T. & I. Overtakes One Weary Porker

Saturday morning, as the south-bound D. T. & I. passenger train was running along two miles south of Springfield, the train came to a sudden stop and the frightened passengers, hardly knowing whether to expect a bold, bad highwayman to enter the car and order them to "stand and deliver" or some other dire calamity, poked their heads out of the window and beheld the fireman trying to dislodge a hog from under the trucks of the baggage car by the use of a fence rail.

It seems that the train had been crawling along and the porker thought he could make it across the tracks between trucks, and was caught under the wheels. When the passengers saw what had occurred, loud cries of "gimme pork sandwich" and similar puns were yelled at the busy fireman.

After the hog had been dislodged and the train started onward, a full half mile was covered before the train again came to a sudden stop and the passengers again poked their heads out of the windows to ascertain the delay. "What's the matter?" was the query. "Begosh I think they must hev caught up with that thar hawg again," said an old farmer, and the train rolled onward, eventually arriving in this city.

Returns From Anniversary Reunion

Capt. T. J. Lindsey returned last night from a two weeks' trip to Tennessee to attend the anniversary of the battle of Shiloh.

The occasion was one of memorable interest to the veterans of this battle, and was largely attended.

The high waters prevented many from reaching Shiloh, although the boats came in crowded and were used wherever they were available.

Capt. Lindsey, who was badly wounded in this battle, was the only representative of this county and was appointed one of a committee of five, three Confederates, two Federals, to select the site for the $50,000 monument to be erected by the Daughters of the Confederacy in honor of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, one of Shiloh's heroes. The D. C. already have $35,000 towards this monument.

Addresses by prominent speakers and fine music were features of the anniversary re-union, as well as the re-dedication of the Iowa State monument, blown down in a cyclone, Iowa furnished $1500 towards its replacement, and sent the largest delegation to the re-union. The " Hornets' Nest" division had a reunion on the ground of its former activity.

Shiloh has one of the finest national cemeteries in the country. The storm of two years ago threw down 221 trees among them the famous Gen. Grant tree. The site of this tree is now marked by a stone tablet and young trees are rapidly growing to take the place of the sturdy one of the earlier period.

The government has re-built a fine lodge for the cemetery superintendent.

Faces Charge Of Cutting to Kill

Harve Skinner, aged about 30, of Waterloo, was brought to this city by Sheriff Nelson Saturday morning, having been indicted for stabbing to kill Ervin Timmons, of Waterloo, the trouble occurring some ten days or two weeks ago, and Timmons being stabbed near the heart.

It is said that Skinner claims that he was down and underneath Timmons when the stabbing was done. According to Skinner the trouble started over the killing of a tramp dog which he had taken a fancy to, and that it was while in the act of chastizing a relative of Timmons that he took a hand in the trouble.

Order Created Mighty Interest

Nothing the State Dairy and Food Department has done has created so much interest as the campaign against the sale of eggs that are unfit for food. Information coming to the department through a voluminous correspondence and personal interviews develops many curious things connected with the egg trade in this state.

Eggs for shipment are usually packed in cases containing thirty dozen, ten layers of three dozen each. Such a case was recently sold by a producer directly to a consumer who buys his eggs in case lots. One entire layer in this case was filled with three dozen small white gourds, about the size and shape of hen's eggs. In other words the consumer was defrauded to the extent of ten per cent. of his purchase.

Incubator eggs, eggs from stolen nests, eggs tainted with the flavor of oil onions, etc., rotten eggs, dirty eggs, washed eggs, eggs containing dead chicks, and sometimes even live chicks, in fact, all kinds of eggs find their way to market in the same lot.

A year or more ago in one of the small cities in this state, a number of cases were awaiting shipment in a storage warehouse. An employee who was standing near one of the cases heard the faint "peep, peep," of a young chick. On removing the eggs from the case he found the one that contained the chick, wrapped it in a piece of flannel, and placed it in a show window in the sun. In a day or two the chick emerged from the shell and is today a busy, full-grown hen. But do not forget that this hen was sold as an egg and not as poultry. How many rotten eggs or eggs with dead chicks were in that case is not known.

This story illustrates the fact that conditions under which eggs are marketed in Ohio are so bad that the big eastern markets discriminate against Ohio eggs to such an extent that when eggs are abundant, those from other states that have stringent egg laws are given the preference. This means lower prices for Ohio eggs, and every farmer and poultryman in the state, whether he grades his eggs or not, is a sufferer. It is the object of State Dairy and Food Commissioner Strode to place Ohio in the front rank in the egg markets of the country, so that Ohio producers will get as high or higher prices than the producers of other states.

Eggs of all sizes and every quality—good, bad and indifferent—have been mixed together and marketed in this state for so many years that the average price is always lower than in other states that have stringent egg laws. For this reason the campaign made by the State Dairy and Food Commissioner is not only in the interest of the consumer, but in the end is just as much in the interest of the producer.

GEARLESS GAS ENGINE FACTORY COMES HERE

GEORGE B. SWOPE AT HEAD

Factory Will Be Located in Rear of Engine House and Will Be 40 by 80 Feet—Building to Be Completed by First of Next Month.

Within the next few weeks a new enterprise will be added to Washington, and ground has already been broken for the new factory.

It is the Gearless Gas Engine Company, of Springfield, with George B. Swope, the well known machinist at the head, and the factory will be equipped for turning out gearless gas engines and a ventilator grate, of which Mr. Swope is the patentee.

The new factory will be 40x80 feet, and located immediately back of the fire department building, fronting on the alley. It will be constructed of cement blocks and for the time being will be only one story in height. Work on the foundation commenced a day or two ago, and the structure will be completed by May 1st and the factory will be grinding out gas engines by May 15th or June 1st.

Mr. Swope purchased the factory about one year ago, and it has been located in Springfield. Some time ago he decided to move the concern to Washington, if a man who had an option upon the plant did not make the purchase, within 90 days. The man failed to buy, and Mr. Swope decided to remove the plant to Washington as soon as he could secure quarters.

In looking about he made a contract with Mr. George Inskeep, who owns the lot upon which the structure is being erected.

The factory will start upon a small scale at first, but a little later Mr. Swope hopes to employ a much larger force and build more engines. The ventilator grate, which has proven a decided success, will also be manufactured on a scale to supply the demand as it is created.

In addition to this oxy-acetylene welding will be a specialty of the factory. No repair work other than welding will be handled.

The Gearless Gas Engine, as indicated by its name, has no gearing like the average engine, and is a model of simplicity. These engines have been in use a number of years and splendid satisfaction is claimed for them.

Two and four horse power engines will be built, and all of them will be of high grade and nominal price. The factory promises to develop into one of the city's foremost enterprises.

Lives for Two Weeks With Bullet in Brain

After nearly two weeks lying at the point of death with a bullet in his brain, Howard Hickman, of Jamestown, who was shot by "Lige" Anderson on March 30th, died Friday at 10:00 a. m., not having regained consciousness.

The fact that the man lived an hour even, is regarded by the attending physicians as wonderful. The bullet entered his head just over the left eye, and lodged somewhere in the brain.

It will be remembered that the shooting which caused Hickman's death took place in Anderson's barber shop in Jamestown, after Anderson had appealed to the marshal for assistance, or permission to carry a gun with which to protect himself.

Anderson was indicted for shooting with intent to kill, and it is now believed the indictment will be changed to first degree murder.

Besides his wife and two children who live in this city, Hickman leaves a father and mother, John Hickman and wife, with whom he made his home in Jamestown.

During Hickman's illness it required three men to hold him in bed notwithstanding that his right side was completely paralyzed. He was over six feet in height and of powerful build. The man was well known in this city, and it is said married his wife here, she later leaving him because of family troubles. Anderson is still in the Greene county jail.

Last Chance

We had to send in another order, owing to the fact that a large number of people, sent in demands for 98c and $1.20 leather bound Webster's New Revised Dictionary, when we announced a few weeks ago that we would cease handling same when our supply was exhausted.

The demand largely exceeded our supply, but our shipment just received has taken care of all orders on hand, and we have still a few Dictionaries left, indexed and unindexed. When this supply is exhausted it will be impossible to get another Dictionary through us.

If you want an up-to-date leather-bound Dictionary, actually worth $2.50, get busy while you can get one, indexed for $1.20 or one without index for 98c.

D. T. & I. Overtakes One Weary Porker

Saturday morning, as the south-bound D. T. & I. passenger train was running along two miles south of Springfield, the train came to a sudden stop and the frightened passengers, hardly knowing whether to expect a bold, bad highwayman to enter the car and order them to "stand and deliver" or some other dire calamity, poked their heads out of the window and beheld the fireman trying to dislodge a hog from under the trucks of the baggage car by the use of a fence rail.

It seems that the train had been crawling along and the porker thought he could make it across the tracks between trucks, and was caught under the wheels. When the passengers saw what had occurred, loud cries of "gimme pork sandwich" and similar puns were yelled at the busy fireman.

After the hog had been dislodged and the train started onward, a full half mile was covered before the train again came to a sudden stop and the passengers again poked their heads out of the windows to ascertain the delay. "What's the matter?" was the query. "Begosh I think they must hev caught up with that thar hawg again," said an old farmer, and the train rolled onward, eventually arriving in this city.

Returns From Anniversary Reunion

Capt. T. J. Lindsey returned last night from a two weeks' trip to Tennessee to attend the anniversary of the battle of Shiloh.

The occasion was one of memorable interest to the veterans of this battle and was largely attended.

The high waters prevented many from reaching Shiloh, although the boats came in crowded and were used wherever they were available.

Capt. Lindsey, who was badly wounded in this battle, was the only representative of this county and was appointed one of a committee of five, three Confederates, two Federals, to select the site for the $50,000 monument to be erected by the Daughters of the Confederacy in honor of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, one of Shiloh's heroes. The D. C. already have $33,000 towards this monument.

Addresses by prominent speakers and fine music were features of the anniversary re-union, as well as the re-dedication of the Iowa State monument blown down in a cyclone. Iowa furnished $1500 towards its replacement, and sent the largest delegation to the re-union. The "Hornets' Nest" division had a reunion on the ground of its former activity.

Shiloh has one of the finest national cemeteries in the country. The storm of two years ago threw down 231 trees, among them the famous Gen. Grant tree. The site of this tree is now marked by a stone tablet and young trees are rapidly growing to take the place of the sturdy one of the earlier period.

The government has re-built a fine lodge for the cemetery superintendent.

Faces Charge Of Cutting to Kill

Harve Skinner, aged about 30, of Waterloo, was brought to this city by Sheriff Nelson Saturday morning, having been indicted for stabbing to kill Ervin Timmons, of Waterloo, the trouble occurring some ten days or two weeks ago, and Timmons being stabbed near the heart.

It is said that Skinner claims that he was down and underneath Timmons when the stabbing was done. According to Skinner the trouble started over the killing of a tramp dog which he had taken a fancy to, and that it was while in the act of chastizing a relative of Timmons that he took a hand in the trouble.

Order Created Mighty Interest

Nothing the State Dairy and Food Department has done has created so much interest as the campaign against the sale of eggs that are unfit for food. Information coming to the department through a voluminous correspondence and personal interviews develops many curious things connected with the egg trade in this state.

Eggs for shipment are usually packed in cases containing thirty dozen, ten layers of three dozen each. Such a case was recently sold by a producer directly to a consumer who buys his eggs in case lots. One entire layer in this case was filled with three dozen small white gourds, about the size and shape of hen's eggs. In other words the consumer was defrauded to the extent of ten per cent of his purchase.

Incubator eggs, eggs from stolen nests, eggs tainted with the flavor of oil, onions, etc., rotten eggs, dirty eggs, washed eggs, eggs containing dead chicks, and sometimes even live chicks, in fact, all kinds of eggs find their way to market in the same lot.

A year or more ago in one of the small cities in this state, a number of cases were awaiting shipment in a storage warehouse. An employee who was standing near one of the cases heard the faint "peep, peep," of a young chick. On removing the eggs from the case he found the one that contained the chick, wrapped it in a piece of flannel, and placed it in a show window in the sun. In a day or two the chick emerged from the shell and is today a busy, full-grown hen. But do not forget that this hen was sold as an egg and not as poultry. How many rotten eggs or eggs with dead chicks were in that case is not known.

This story illustrates the fact that conditions under which eggs are marketed in Ohio are so bad that the big eastern markets discriminate against Ohio eggs to such an extent that when eggs are abundant, those from other states that have stringent egg laws are given the preference. This means lower prices for Ohio eggs, and every farmer and poultryman in the state, whether he grades his eggs or not, is a sufferer. It is the object of State Dairy and Food Commissioner Strode to place Ohio in the front rank in the egg markets of the country, so that Ohio producers will get as high or higher prices than the producers of other states.

Eggs of all sizes and every quality—good, bad and indifferent—have been mixed together and marketed in this state for so many years that the average price is always lower than in other states that have stringent egg laws. For this reason the campaign made by the State Dairy and Food Commissioner is not only in the interest of the consumer, but in the end is just as much in the interest of the producer.

INSECTS AS HUMAN FOOD

Insects, as a group, constitute an important source of food supply for the races of mankind. They have been eaten from time immemorial, sometimes figuring as luxuries, at others a staple article of diet. Perhaps the chief food insect—and a very important one, too—is the locust. It furnishes the favorite food of many numerous African tribes, some nations living almost exclusively upon its teeming hordes. Locusts have been regarded as a luxury from the earliest times of which any records remain to us. In the British museum there is a Nineveh sculpture showing men carrying different kinds of meat to some festival, and among them are some who carry long sticks to which locusts are tied. In Athens of old, locusts and grasshoppers were sold in the markets, and they were then preferred as dainties above the most succulent quails or the best fgs. In the law of Moses, as set forth in the book of Leviticus, we find locusts permitted as food to the Jews; and to the present day in Palestine, these insects are fried in sesame oil and eaten. In Arabia Petrea locusts are fried in the sun and ground into a kind of flour for cake-making. In Central Africa certain tribes make them into thick brown soup. In Madagascar they are baked in huge jars, then fried in grease and mixed with rice. In Algeria they are simply boiled in water and salted to taste. The Arabs grind and bake them as cakes, roast them in butter, or crush them with camels' cheese and dates, but it is said that they only resort to this fare in years of famine. In southern Russia, where locusts are still extensively eaten by the serfs, the insects are usually smoked in the first instance like fish. When required for consumption, the legs and wings are broken off, and the bodies are then boiled, roasted, stewed, fried or broiled.

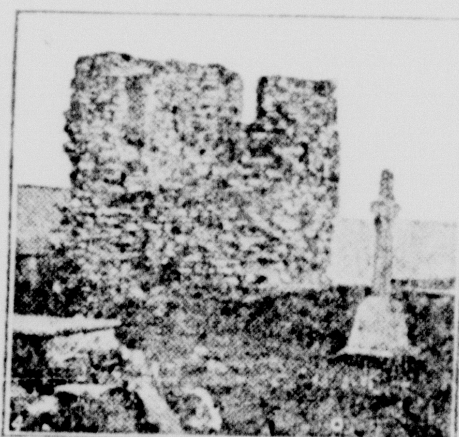

After the locusts, the popular insect food consists of grubs and caterpillars, of which many species are eaten with avidity in different countries of the world. The grub of the common cockchafer (Melolontha), when properly dressed forms a nutritious and actually dainty food. Twenty years or so ago, a banquet was given at the Cafe Custozza in Paris for the special purpose of demonstrating the excellent qualities of the ver blanc, as this grub is called. The insects were fried to a golden brown color in a paste of flour, milk and eggs; and of the 50 guests present the majority called for a second helping.

The only butterfly distinguished by supplying food to mankind is an Australian species called by the natives "Bugong." Regularly every year this insect congregates in vast swarms on the rock slopes of the Bugong mountains, and it is said that the natives light great fires beneath the trees upon which the butterflies have settled for the night, thus suffocating them and bringing them to earth.

Among the insects that are eaten it is necessary to include the famous grubs, or palm grubs, of the West Indies with the allied species found in Java. These grubs when roasted on tiny spits and richly spiced, are said to surpass all other animal food in flavor.

The ancient Greeks were very fond of cicadas or harvest flies—insects of a very wide geographical range, whose shrill note is a familiar country sound throughout the southern states during the summer season. Cicadas are also eaten today by certain African tribes. The Greeks were also eaters of crickets; but are these insects neglected at the present day, for the natives of a large portion of southern Africa dig up a subterranean species, and roast it over a bright fire for food.

RELIC OF FIFTH CENTURY

On the island of Bardsey, in the Irish sea, is a ruined tower that is a relic of the fifth century, being a memorial to the thousands of "saints" who are buried there, according to tradition. The island in ancient times had a great reputation for sanctity, and its abbey was the scene of many pilgrimages. To be buried in its soil was a thing much to be desired, and it is believed that more than 50,000 "saints" gained this privilege.

TINKER ON SPRING TRAINING

Clever Little Chicago Shortstop Says It Is Funny Business and Should Depend on Player.

"Funny thing, this spring training business is, anyway," says Joe Tinker. "It's uncertain any way you look at it, but, of course, all of us have to go through it. I don't know that there are any particular rules you have to follow, or any set of rules that every team could adhere to. A fellow, has to use common sense in baseball, as in everything else, and, of course, all of us have slightly different ideas about how to get into condition. As for myself, I do a lot of training at home before I report to the training grounds in the spring, and, naturally, whatever any man thinks about any particular thing is based on his own experience and feelings.

"The pitchers of any team should have more work in the spring than the other players, for the reason that they have the most work to do in a game, and need to be the best men in the game for that reason, or rather, the strongest, I should say.

"I do not believe in any long runs for any ball player, for he does not have that kind of stuff in a game. What a ball player needs, as a fighter does, is to strengthen his legs. I believe pitchers should run the bases all the time, and get used to this. This is necessary so that when they get on bases in a game they would not be worn out if they should run around and score a run.

"You take a pitcher that is all tired out by making a run, for instance, and he is in no shape to pitch the next inning. He is almost sure to lose his control, and that is what a heavier needs in a game more than anything else. This weakness of many pitchers is often due to being winded after running the bases, and probably if more of them would condition themselves properly before going into a game they would stick.

"Mathewson, Walsh, Brown and the other great pitchers have had plenty of experience, but one reason for their success is that they are strong. Their legs are good and they can go through a hard game without becoming weak. The young fellows are weak because they do not run enough. This gives them leg power and also wind. This running holds good with all of the players, but is particularly good for pitchers, for they have the hardest work to do. They are always on the move.

"I think a month on the training

ground is long enough for any team to get ready in. All of the players should become acclimated in that time if the weather is favorable for playing. Sometimes teams train too long. At that, it is often hard to get teams into the stride until three weeks after the season begins, for no player takes the same interest in a practice game he does in the real thing.

FREAK HIT WORRIES GREEN

Ball Lighted on Scoreboard Platform and Rolled Off When Danny Hustles Up Ladder.

"Funniest home run that ever my peepers were laid on," said Bris Lord, during the nocturnal training bee, "happened in Chicago six or seven years ago. The Athletics were playing the Sox and it was on the old grounds.

One of our fellows, I can't just recall his name now, whaled one in the air out to where Danny Green held forth. Now, the scoreboard was there with a platform in front of it, just like they have on the Phillies grounds.

"The ball hit the platform and, by gosh, it stuck up there. Danny waited for the ball to come down while the hitter was sneaking around the bases. After he waited about a few seconds and the ball didn't come down to earth, Danny sneaked up the ladder that ran up the platform and started to get the ball. Darned if he didn't get to the top rung of the ladder and was just climbing on the platform when the ball up and rolled off the boards again and fell down where he was standing.

"Of course, the batter got all the way round, while everybody gave Daniel the merry ha ha."

Insects, as a group, constitute an important source of food supply for the races of mankind. They have been eaten from time immemorial, sometimes figuring as luxuries, at others a staple article of diet. Perhaps the chief food insect—and a very important one, too—is the locust. It furnishes the favorite food of many numerous African tribes, some nations living almost exclusively upon its teeming hordes. Locusts have been regarded as a luxury from the earliest times of which any records remain to us. In the British museum there is a Nineveh sculpture showing men carrying different kinds of meal to some festival, and among them are some who carry long sticks to which locusts are tied. In Athens of old, locusts and grasshoppers were sold in the markets, and they were then preferred as dainties above the most succulent quails or the best fgs. In the law of Moses, as set forth in the book of Leviticus, we find locusts permitted as food to the Jews, and to the present day in Palestine, these insects are fried in sesame oil and eaten. In Arabia Petraea locusts are fried in the sun and ground into a kind of flour for cake-making. In Central Africa certain tribes make them into thick brown soup. In Madagascar they are baked in huge jars, then fried in grease and mixed with rice. In Algeria they are simply boiled in water and salted to taste. The Arabs grind and bake them as cakes, roast them in butter, or crush them with camels' cheese and dates, but it is said that they only resort to this fare in years of famine. In southern Russia, where locusts are still extensively eaten by the Serfs, the insects are usually smoked in the first instance like fish. When required for consumption, the legs and wings are broken off, and the bodies are then boiled, roasted, stewed, fried or broiled.

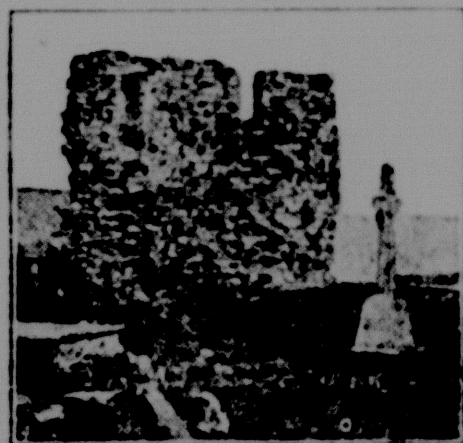

After the locusts, the popular insect food consists of grubs and caterpillars, of which many species are eaten with avidity in different countries of the world. The grub of the common cockchafer (Melolontha), when properly dressed forms a nutritious and actually dainty food. Twenty years or so ago, a banquet was given at the Cafe Casteza in Paris for the special purpose of demonstrating the excellent qualities of the ver blanc, as this grub is called. The insects were fried to a golden brown color in a paste of flour, milk and eggs; and of the 50 guests present the majority called for a second helping.

The only butterfly distinguished by supplying food to mankind is an Australian species called by the natives "Bukong." Regularly every year this insect congregates in vast swarms on the rock slopes of the Bukong mountains, and it is said that the natives light great fires beneath the trees upon which the butterflies have settled for the night, thus suffocating them and bringing them to earth.

Among the insects that are eaten it is necessary to include the famous grigru, or palm grub, of the West Indies with the allied species found in Java. These grubs when roasted on tiny spits and richly spiced, are said to surpass all other animal food in flavor.

The ancient Greeks were very fond of chodas or harvest flies—insects of a very wide geographical range, whose shrill note is a familiar country sound throughout the southern states during the summer season. Chodas are also eaten today by certain African tribes. The Greeks were also eaters of crickets, but are these insects neglected at the present day, for the natives of a large portion of southern Africa dig up a subterranean species, and roast it over a bright fire for food.

RELIC OF FIFTH CENTURY

On the island of Bardsey, in the Irish sea, is a ruined tower that is a relic of the fifth century, being a memorial to the thousands of "saints" who are buried there, according to tradition. The island in ancient times had a great reputation for sanctity, and its abbey was the scene of many pilgrimages. To be buried in its soil was a thing much to be desired, and it is believed that more than 50,000 "saints" gained this privilege.

VALENTINE COLLECTIONS

A collection of 150,000 valentines made by an Islington stationer named King has been offered by him to the British museum. Some of the valentines are elaborate, comprising 750 parts, with prices at $50 and higher. All these valentines were printed prior to the beginning of the present century.

TINKER ON SPRING TRAINING

Clever Little Chicago Shortstop Says It Is Funny Business and Should Depend on Player.

"Funny thing, this spring training business is, anyway," says Joe Tinker. "It's uncertain any way you look at it, but, of course, all of us have to go through it. I don't know that there are any particular rules you have to follow, or any set of rules that every team could adhere to. A fellow has to use common sense in baseball, as in everything else, and of course, all of us have slightly different ideas about how to get into condition. As for myself, I do a lot of training at home before I report to the training grounds in the spring, and, naturally, whatever any man thinks about any particular thing is based on his own experience and feelings.

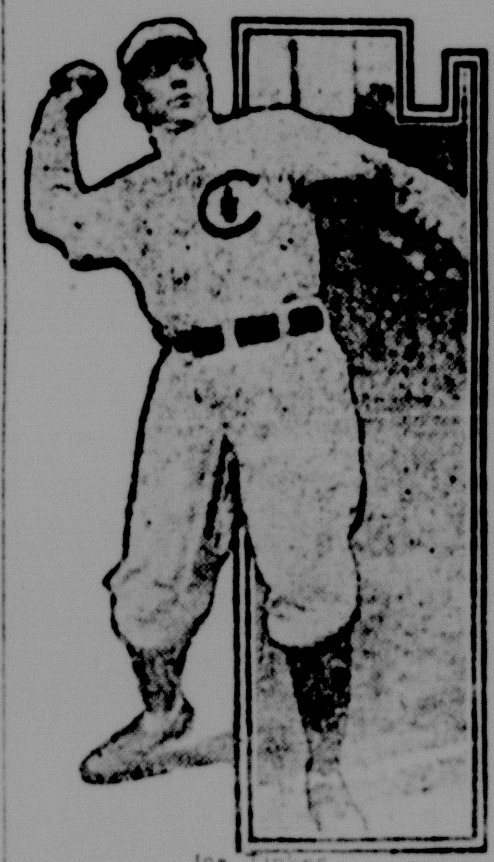

"The pitchers of any team should have more work in the spring than the other players, for the reason that they have the most work to do in a game, and need to be the best men in the game for that reason, or rather, the strongest, I should say.

"I do not believe in any long runs for any ball player, for he does not have that kind of stuff in a game. What a ball player needs, as a fighter does, is to strengthen his legs. I believe pitchers should run the bases all the time, and get used to this. This is necessary, so that when they get on bases in a game they would not be worn out if they should run around and score a run.

"You take a pitcher that is all tired out by making a run, for instance, and he is in no shape to pitch the next inning. He is almost sure to lose his control, and that is what a heavier needs in a game more than anything else. This weakness of many pitchers is often due to being winded after running the bases, and probably if more of them would condition themselves properly before going into a game they would stick.

Mathewson, Walsh, Brown and the other great pitchers have had plenty of experience, but one reason for their success is that they are strong. Their legs are good and they can go through a hard game without becoming weak. The young fellows are weak because they do not run enough. This gives them leg power and also wind. This running holds good with all of the players, but is particularly good for pitchers, for they have the hardest work to do. They are always on the move.

"I think a month on the training

ground is long enough for any team to get ready in. All of the players should become acclimated in that time if the weather is favorable for playing. Sometimes teams train too long. At that, it is often hard to get teams into the stride until those weeks after the season begins, for no player takes the same interest in a practice game he does in the real thing."

FREAK HIT WORRIES GREEN

Ball Lighted on Scoreboard Platform and Rolled Off When Danny Hustles Up Ladder.

"Funniest home run that ever my peepers were laid on," said Brs Lord, during the nocturnal training bee, "happened in Chicago six or seven years ago. The Athletics were playing the Sox and it was on the old grounds.

"One of our fellows, I can't just recall his name now, whaled one in the air out to where Danny Green held forth. Now, the scoreboard was there with a platform in front of it, just like they have on the Phillies grounds.

"The ball hit the platform and, by gosh, it stuck up there. Danny waited for the ball to come down while the hitter was sneaking around the bases. After he waited about a few seconds and the ball didn't come down to earth, Danny sneaked up the ladder that ran up the platform and started to get the ball. Darned if he didn't get to the top rung of the ladder and was just climbing on the platform when the ball up and rolled off the boards again and fell down where he was standing.

"Of course, the batter got all the way round, while everybody gave Daniel the merry ha ha."
